

21st September 2023, 15:15-17:00h Crash Course Research Libraries

University Library, Vossius

On the 21st of September, Bart van der Steen and Mirjam Heijnekamp will give you a crash course library use. How can you find literature and primary sources, which databases might be helpful, where in the library can the PCs be found? All of these questions and more will be answered during this session.

The PhD sessions at Leiden University Libraries aim to introduce PhD students to librarians, library resources and library services. Every session focuses on an aspect of the PhD trajectory, and what services, specialists and collections Leiden University Libraries has to support you.

You can register for this lesson by sending an email to m.j.l.heijnekamp@library.leidenuniv.nl stating your name, faculty and institute.

26th October 2023, 15:15-17:00h Open Access Publishing

University Library, Vossius

What is happening in the publishing world, and how does this affect your research? Did you know your publications will eventually need to be stored in the Leiden Repository? Open Science is not just about requirements but also full of opportunities to expand your network, increase the visibility of your research, enlarge your audience and reach out beyond the academic community.

We welcome PhDs from the Humanities faculty to this tutorial dedicated to Open Science and the advantages of Open Access publishing.

This tutorial covers:

- Publishing your research: where and how?
- Open Science: what's in it for you?!
- Grants and mandatory open access publishing
- Your thesis and other publications, and the Leiden Repository: rules and issues
- Open Access publishing, (Dutch) law, funder requirements
- Your online identity, persistent identifiers and impact of your research
- Discussing publishing strategies with others

The PhD sessions at Leiden University Libraries aim to introduce PhD students to librarians, library resources and library services. Every session focuses on an aspect of the PhD trajectory, and what services, specialists and collections Leiden University Libraries has to support you.

You can register for this lesson by sending an email to m.j.l.heijnekamp@library.leidenuniv.nl stating your name, faculty and institute.

16th of November 2023, 15:15-17:00h Copyrights and Plagiarism

University Library, Heinsius

What is copyright? How will it affect you as a PhD candidate and as a scholar, researcher, lecturer and author?

Some topics that will be covered are:

- plagiarism, what is it and how to avoid it;
- copyright and you as a teacher/lecturer;
- copyright and your students.

In this session we will also briefly discuss the Dutch AVG Laws.

The PhD sessions at Leiden University Libraries aim to introduce PhD students to librarians, library resources and library services. Every session focuses on an aspect of the PhD trajectory, and what services, specialists and collections Leiden University Libraries has to support you.

You can register for this lesson by sending an email to m.j.l.heijnekamp@library.leidenuniv.nl stating your name, faculty and institute.

Date	Topic	Lecturer
February 2024	Introduction to Digital Humanities	Staff CDS
28-3-2024	How to manage and publish your data	Staff CDS
11-4-2024	Reference Managers	Lisette Grimmus & Mirjam Heijnekamp

All courses will be at the University Library, Vossius, from 15:15-17:00h.