Special Note

items marked GREEN are new in this newsletter:

KNAW Research Funding Consultation (multidisciplinary)

Science policy decisions have a major impact on us all. However, it is not always clear who makes these decisions and whether these decisions have been made after broad consultation with the community. How can we include the voices of community members? And in doing so, how can we move from polarized stance-taking to a more nuanced discussion, acknowledging the dilemmas a policymaker may face?

By means of the Research Funding Consultation project, The Young Academy is experimenting with a collective consultation.

KNAW invites researchers to join and have a say.

NWO: New SSH Open Competition format gives researchers more opportunities

The SSH Open Competition is ready for a makeover. NWO is thus responding to the need of the research field in the Social Sciences and Humanities to give this instrument more variety in terms of grant amounts and target groups. The NWO Domain Board Social Sciences and Humanities (SSH) has decided to expand the opportunities for researchers in the Open Competition and was advised in this endeavour by the six roundtables from the Social Sciences and Humanities domain.

Externe Onderzoeksfinanciering: Beoordeel onderzoeksvoorstellen zelf

Het voorbereiden, schrijven en indienen van subsidieaanvragen voor onderzoek is een intensief proces en een enorme uitdaging; de competitie is hoog, de succeskans helaas vaak laag. Om (meer) inzicht te krijgen in de vereisten die aan succesvolle subsidieaanvragen worden gesteld, kan het interessant zijn zelf deel te nemen aan de evaluatie van onderzoeksvoorstellen.

NWO, de Europese Commissie en de European Cooperation in Science and Technology zijn bijvoorbeeld op zoek naar experts voor beoordelingscommissies en/ of ten behoeve van evaluatie van subsidieaanvragen.

Communication in interdisciplinary teams

Interdisciplinarity has become a buzzword in science and research, mainly because nowadays many researchers work in interdisciplinary teams. In these types of team constellations, effective and clear communication is key. Yet many academics struggle to communicate with colleagues from different disciplinary backgrounds. Teams composed of researchers from the social and hard sciences are particularly often plagued by communication problems as differences in epistemological and ontological outlook are pronounced. We have invited experts Professor Jessica Thompson and Dr Katrin Kriebs to discuss which communication strategies and best practices can render collaboration between researchers from different disciplinary backgrounds more effective.

Dokter Wittenberg Stichting (psychologie)

De Dokter Wittenberg Stichting verleent subsidies aan projecten die bijdragen aan de terugkeer in de samenleving en de arbeidsmarkt van (uitbehandelde) psychiatrische patiënten.

Door de toekenning van financiële bijdragen wordt beoogd initiatieven te ondersteunen die zonder deze ondersteuning niet levensvatbaar zijn. Het kan daarbij gaan om tijdelijke projecten; of liever nog om projecten die na verloop van tijd ook zonder financiële ondersteuning van de Dokter Wittenberg Stichting voortgang vinden.

UKRI call (multidisciplinary)

This grant supports research that exploits existing data resources for social and economic research, created by the ESRC and other agencies, for comparative analysis. It also aims to develop research capacity and skills in using large and complex secondary data. Grants can be for up to £300,000 for a period of up to 24 months. Funding is based on the full economic costs of the research, with ESRC providing 80% of the cost and the research organisation covering the balance. Proposals can draw from the wider sciences, but the social sciences must represent more than 50% of the research focus and effort.

Additional primary (first-time) data collection will not be funded under this call.

Deadline: ongoing
