

5 STUDENT WELL-BEING PRIORITIES

What are they and how will the University deliver them?

Awareness

We want to create the space needed to discuss all student well-being topics and ensure a coherent support provision.

1

Prevention and early detection

We want student well-being to receive the attention it deserves. This includes early detection, making it easier for students to seek help and increasing our staff's knowledge of the subject.

2

Support and psychological intervention

We want to improve our support provision so students know what is available and we can provide joined-up support.

3

Professionalisation

We want to provide our student-facing staff and student organisations with hands-on information, tools and skills to help improve our students' well-being. This could mean training, the buddy system and mentoring and tutoring.

4

Connections and a safe study environment

We want to improve the study environment for our students by balancing the course load, offering innovative teaching, focusing on personal development and improving how we communicate with one another.
