

Seeking the Truth through Journalism

A discussion with The New York Times's
Visual Investigations

December 1, 2022

3-4:30 PM CET

The New York Times is at the forefront of new methods and technologies to champion the truth in an era of rampant misinformation.

The Visual Investigations team combines traditional reporting with digital sleuthing and the forensic analysis of visual evidence. Their cutting-edge work deconstructs the most important news events of the day, separating fact from fiction.

Join New York Times journalist Christiaan Triebert for a look at the Visual Investigations team: its reporting, research and fact-checking methods, and their powerful results.

Christiaan Triebert is a Dutch journalist on The New York Times's award-winning Visual Investigations Team and co-producer of "Day of Rage," one of the most complete pictures to date of what happened during the Jan. 6 Capitol riot, and why.
